REFORM REVEALED

APRIL 2026

FOREWORD

On 7 May, voters will decide who runs their local services - social care, bins, schools, roads, public health and more. They will elect people to control multi-million-pound budgets. The stakes are high.

The public have a right to expect that those they elect to manage these services are responsible, decent and fit for public office. Time and again, Reform's candidates fall short.

Reform Revealed: The People Behind Farage examines Reform UK's chosen candidates in this year's local elections in England. These are the people Nigel Farage believes are fit to serve working families - and the people he wants to help propel him to power.

We have identified 45 candidates with views that are extreme, bizarre and offensive - but apparently not too extreme, bizarre or offensive for Reform UK.

Some of these views echo those of Reform's leadership. Nigel Farage has long argued for the NHS to be replaced. One Reform candidate in London next month appears to agree, saying: "Hate is too weak a word for what I feel towards the NHS. I'd tear it down and salt the earth upon which it stood".

Reform is also putting forward candidates who have promoted dangerous conspiracy theories: describing Covid-19 as the "hoax of the century"; claiming 5G mobile networks damage people's health; spreading falsehoods about paracetamol containing deadly viruses; even endorsing 9/11 conspiracies.

When you consider that Reform's party conference last year gave a platform to someone who said it was "highly likely" that the Covid vaccine was linked to cancer in the Royal Family, it is perhaps no surprise that local candidates feel emboldened to share such extreme views.

And the individual who originally made that claim? He is also standing as a Reform candidate next month.

We have also uncovered multiple Reform would-be councillors who have made racist and offensive remarks. A candidate in Bolton, previously suspended from the Conservative Party, wrote "shoot the Ps on the spot" on social media. Another questioned why white people cannot use the N-word. Reform has a track record of failing to challenge racism: their MP for Runcorn, Sarah Pochin, said it "drives her mad" to see black and brown people on television.

This is only a snapshot. It likely scratches the surface of the offensive and disturbing views Nigel Farage is willing to tolerate in those representing his party - and, if he has his way, representing your local area.

Only a vote for Labour on 7 May can stop them.

She is Holly Drafahl, who goes by the name Holly Smith on Facebook, and she took to social media to warn that she had seen a “possibly Turkish” man flying a drone near a school, which was closed, and then in order to scare parents suggested he might have been planning a terrorist attack. The man in question apparently “owned up” (i.e. pointed out) that he is a landscape photographer and was behaving perfectly legitimately.

But just in case the point wasn’t made, Ms Drafahl then ‘liked’ the reply of: “Turkish, alarm bells. Muslim pedos, common sense to worry”.’

AND LEEDS, ARMLEY

REVELATION:

Both stood as candidates for the Christian People's Alliance, a party that wants to criminalise abortion and IVF in all circumstances, repeal same-sex marriage and legalise civil partnerships for siblings

EVIDENCE:

Whilst looking to strengthen marriage, there can and should be state recognition for other mutually supportive relationships where two people have lived together for a long time, including siblings, so that inheritance and property can be passed between them and they can be named "next of kin". We will therefore retain an adapted legal concept of 'civil partnership' and consult further on the details, including finding a more appropriate name for this kind of recognised relationship.

We have opposed all attempts to redefine the meaning of marriage and will repeal those laws which have already attempted to do this. As is normal in British politics we will not, however, make those laws retrospective.

The Christian Peoples Alliance is unashamed to declare its total commitment to the principle of respect for life. God values everyone equally and so every citizen from conception (fertilisation) to natural death deserves the protection of the law. The language of human rights is often heard in both our national and the European Parliament, but rarely that of the most basic human need – to be born, nurtured and protected without fear of death in utero. Abortion leads to increased exploitation of women, not their 'liberation'. Abortion violates the dignity and integrity of women. It leaves a trail of anger, guilt, resentment, depression and loss of self-respect. Whenever we act or speak, we pledge to do so, however, without judging or condemning any individual, especially any woman who has been involved in abortion.

We have opposed all attempts to redefine the meaning of marriage and will repeal those laws which have already attempted to do this. As is normal in British politics we will not, however, make those laws retrospective. Anybody who undergoes a 'same-sex marriage' abroad will not have that 'marriage' legally recognised in this country.

Schools should not be used as an apparatus for social engineering and promoting the secular liberal agenda. They should respect the views of parents and the cultural background of pupils. Schools must not be able to take action against teachers who support real marriage, and neither should any employer, public sector or otherwise, be able to take discriminatory action against any individual on this basis.

"It is increasingly clear that the so-called Covid-19 pandemic was a staged event, designed to enable profound changes desired by powerful forces at the expense of majority populations around the world" he wrote.

He claims the harm from Covid was actually caused "by the policies" including vaccinations, "not by any observable impacts of the virus." The publication was founded by 9/11 'Truthers' who believe the 2001 terror attacks in New York were an inside job.

Introduction

Mike Mendoza presents a live phone-in programme, which is designed to challenge audiences by stimulating discussion on topics introduced by the presenter and callers to the show.

During the introduction to this programme, Mike Mendoza outlined the subjects that were to be discussed, by stating the following:

"The other thing that has really got up my nose over the last couple of days...and again you might like to comment on this...are the footballers...and I'm including David Beckham on this one 'cause he's jumped on the bandwagon today, and that's exactly what they've done. Footballers yesterday jumping on the bandwagon to beg whoever it is that has taken Madeleine McCann away, whoever has grabbed her, to give her back...now you tell me, paedophiles in general are the type of people that surely would not follow football...not many gay people to the best of my knowledge are great football fans."

One listener complained that this reference linking paedophiles with gay people was inappropriate. Ofcom asked the broadcaster to comment on these remarks in light of Rule 2.3 (generally accepted standards).

You are brainwashed to believe on the media. Most have you have changed your Facebook emoji to supporting Ukraine. The people who have suffered are Ukraine's common people with their lives, living standards and most of all, peace.

I have never supported Zelenskyy. Call it gut instinct but as soon as he began pulling on the heart strings of countries around the world, he sat really wrong with me.

I'm sure you all saw the Trump, Vance and Zelenskyy on the tv at the whitehouse and no doubt, they thought what a bully Trump was to Zelenskyy. It's good to see it's all coming out now. Billions of donated pounds, guns and weapons untraceable.

Do you feel a bit of a mug?

Read this...

I thought my post yesterday would put the Zelenskyy debacle to rest but overnight I was included in a Zoom call with some European friends from France, Germany, and the UK. I also went back and watched the whole video of the White House encounter. To say I am horrified at what I missed is an understatement. I got some of this info from Tucker Carlson and many other podcasts. I just couldn't believe that little dictator called Vice President Vance a "Bitch." Hopefully, this post puts the debacle together for those who did not see it.

Did you realize in the exchange with Vice President Vance, Zelenskyy mumbled "Bitch" in his language. This is why the Ambassador to Ukraine, Oksana Markarova, had her hands on her head. She knew what he said. Not only that, but Zelenskyy outright threatened the United States on live TV. What made President Trump angry was when Zelenskyy said the oceans separating us would no longer protect us and we would "feel" the war and terror. This is when President Trump started telling him not to say how we are going to feel. He knew it was a threat and our President went after him.

I am going to try to keep this brief. I knew it was serious when the biggest war hawk in Congress, Lindsey Graham, stood in front of the cameras and went after Zelenskyy, disavowing him. These two men are friends. Graham has been responsible for getting Zelenskyy billions of dollars from the US. He knew the threat had been made. This wasn't just a shouting match and he wanted to distance himself before something happened.

What disturbs me is what Zelenskyy has been doing with the money and weapons received from the US. Over the past three years, with the tacit support of its Western patrons, the Ukrainian government has committed a remarkable number of serious crimes. The Ukrainians sold huge quantities of American weapons on the international black market at twenty cents on the dollar. These weapons are now in the hands of armed groups around the world, including Hamas, the Mexican drug cartels and the forces now controlling Syria. God knows what the Ukrainians have done with the pathogens in American biolabs in their country. Even US intel agencies aren't sure. The Ukrainians have also murdered several people in various countries in political assassinations and tried to murder others, including American journalists and a European head of state. This is all true, and it's all going to come out at some point.

I have never supported Ukraine and it hurts to see so many Americans flying the Ukrainian flag on their FB pages. How propaganda has worked on our citizens! Zelenskyy is a part of the party that overtook Europe in 1939 that starts with an "N." It has been covered up because Obama and Biden were a part of this. Trump was impeached just for questioning them about Ukraine.

I am glad we all got to watch as it unfolded because it was more than a shouting match. We, our Country, the United States, were threatened in the Oval Office yesterday on live television, by a pathetic, diabolical dictator. Copied and shared *

Why is this such a shock. Child trafficking is one of the biggest crimes around the world ... Or, are they shocked it was the Russian army that freed these children...
